

Sure Relief for Women.

No. 18 Central Ave.
HOT SPRINGS, ARK., April 30, 1908.

Eighteen months ago I was so completely run down that my body ached from head to foot. My back seemed to break in two and I suffered intense pain in the lower abdomen. I could not afford to lay off and take a rest, and no medicine helped me any.

A friend told me how much Wine of Cardui built her up and advised me by all means to take it. The day I took the first dose the recovery of my health began. It was nearly three months before I was entirely cured, but at the end of that time I was in better health than I had been for seven years.

I look on Wine of Cardui as the most blessed medicine that a woman could possibly take when she feels sick and tired of life.

WINE of CARDUI

Mrs. Nelson describes the condition of thousands of women. That condition comes by slow stages. Usually the important function of menstruation is at first slightly irregular. Then comes the painful periods. Bearing-down pains and ovarian inflammation follow. Finally the nervous system gives way and the whole system has become affected and the pains rack the body from head to foot.

Wine of Cardui is a menstrual regulator of established reputation. No woman who takes it suffers as Mrs. Nelson suffered. It gives speedy and complete relief from the torturing menstrual agonies which are making so many women invalids today. Do not let yourself come to the pitiable condition Mrs. Nelson describes.

Secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist today and begin treatment immediately.

WAS BURNED AT ALTAR

Centenarian in Louisiana Meets Untimely Death by Fire From Altar Candles.

WAS WORSHIPER IN CHURCH

Victim Was Mrs. Donald Gullory, Aged 100 Years—Few Others in Church at Time—Unable to Save Her.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Opelousas, La., says:

While engaged in prayer at the Catholic church here, Mrs. Donald Gullory, aged 100 years, has been burned to death in a horrible manner.

She was bowing before the altar, near which a number of candles were burning. Her devotions concluded, she arose to leave the church when her dress came in contact with a candle and in an instant she was ablaze.

Only a few worshippers were in the church at the time and their attention was attracted by the agonized cries of the centenarian. They ran to the woman's rescue, but too late. She died in agony a few minutes after her removal from the church.

CANNED GOODS GOOD FOOD.

Prof. Prescott Says They Are Both Wholesome And Safe.

The question is sometimes asked, are canned goods likely to cause ptomaine poisoning? The answer to this is, "In general, no." An entirely unwarranted prejudice against canned foods exists in some quarters, fostered, no doubt, by extravagant newspaper statements in cases of illness where the cause is not at once apparent, and "ptomaine poisoning from canned goods" is sagely suggested as a means of concealing ignorance of the real cause. As a matter of fact, canned goods, if properly prepared, are among the most wholesome and safe foods, because they are generally prepared from fresh, or at least undecomposed material, and are freed from bacteria by efficient sterilization. This insures that no further change can take place unless micro-organisms gain access in some way. It occasionally happens that sterilization is not complete, and in this case the material in the can may spoil. The same results may be produced if the cans happen to be leaky. But the consumer may generally avoid trouble from both these sources by careful inspection of the cans. Gases are almost always disengaged in fermentation, and especially in putrefactive processes. These gases cause distension or "swelling" of the cans; the ends become convex or bulged, where they should be concave or hollow. It should be the invariable rule of the housekeeper never to accept a can which is swelled; the concavity of sides or ends is the outward sign of a good can. On the other hand, it is not to be supposed that the contents of a can, after opening, will keep indefinitely, or are proof against the attacks of putrefactive bacteria simply because they have hitherto been sterilized or preserved. Of course, if they become seeded with germs and are left under growth, decomposition will readily set in.—Prof. Samuel C. Prescott.

LOOKS LIKE THOMAS LIPTON.

Captain Burchell, Of The Owens, Resembles Famous Yachtsman. Captain Burchell, of the British bark Owens, which discharged 1200 tons of coal here last week, is a living likeness of Sir Thomas Lipton.

He resembles the distinguished Briton to such an extent that he has been mistaken for him on many occasions. While in London a couple of years ago the captain states that some of the highest nabobs in the land came up and addressed him as Sir Thomas, and inquired when he intended to compete again for the American cup. He went through the same experience in New York a number of times and upon the strength of his strong resemblance to the famous sportsman and tea merchant he was given the best that the city afforded. Nothing was too good for him, and he says that he was sorry that he finally woke up and realized that it was all a dream.

"According to what people say," explained the captain, "I am very much like Lipton in appearance, but when it comes to financial matters he discounts me. In that respect I am not in his class. As far as sports are concerned and especially yachting I am just as fond of them as he, and I had the requisite amount of money I would probably build a yacht and endeavor to retain that treasured cup for the British empire."
